In-Text Citations

APA (6th Edition) uses in-text citations that refer readers to a detailed list of references:

Moses and Kelly (2017) argue that “there is a continued need for more research that not only deconstructs power but also identifies positive ways in which students make room for themselves within academic settings” (p. 419).

or

Studies have explored inclusive literacy practices among bilingual first graders (Moses & Kelly, 2017).

Sample Citations

Journal Article

Book

Book Chapter

Notes re: citations
- Pay attention to capitalization. The only titles that are in title case are journal titles
  - Ex: Journal of Autism and Developmental Disorders above
- Cite a whole book if:
  - An author or co-authors wrote the entire book.
  - You are making a broad statement about an edited book as a whole or referring to a part written by the editor (e.g., an introduction or appendix).
- Generally, avoid quoting or citing from the literature review section of an article. Look to the Discussion and Conclusions sections for the author’s original ideas.

Resources
Purdue Online Writing Lab (OWL) – Sample paper, sample citations, etc.
Workshops through UNLV Libraries, Writing Center